

CUSTOMER SHOPPING BEHAVIOR · EXECUTIVE READOUT

Customer shopping behavior is loyal, but growth is underpowered

A strong retained base is carrying the business. The next quarter should convert that loyalty into broader acquisition, larger baskets, and healthier merchandising.

The business has a strong base, with one clear growth gap

Transactions analyzed

3,900

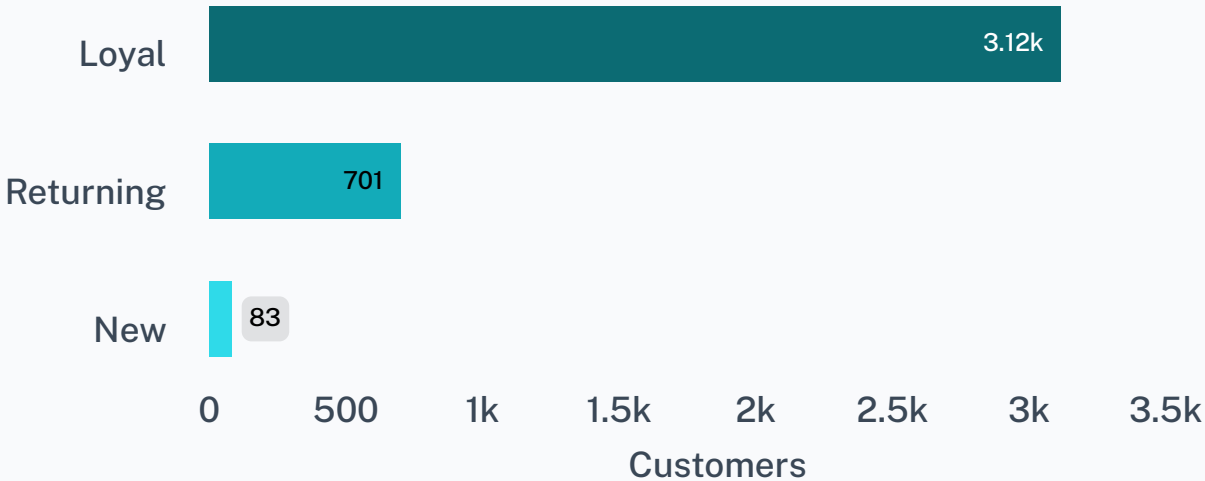

Average purchase

$59.76

Average rating

3.75 / 5

Segment

THE GROWTH GAP

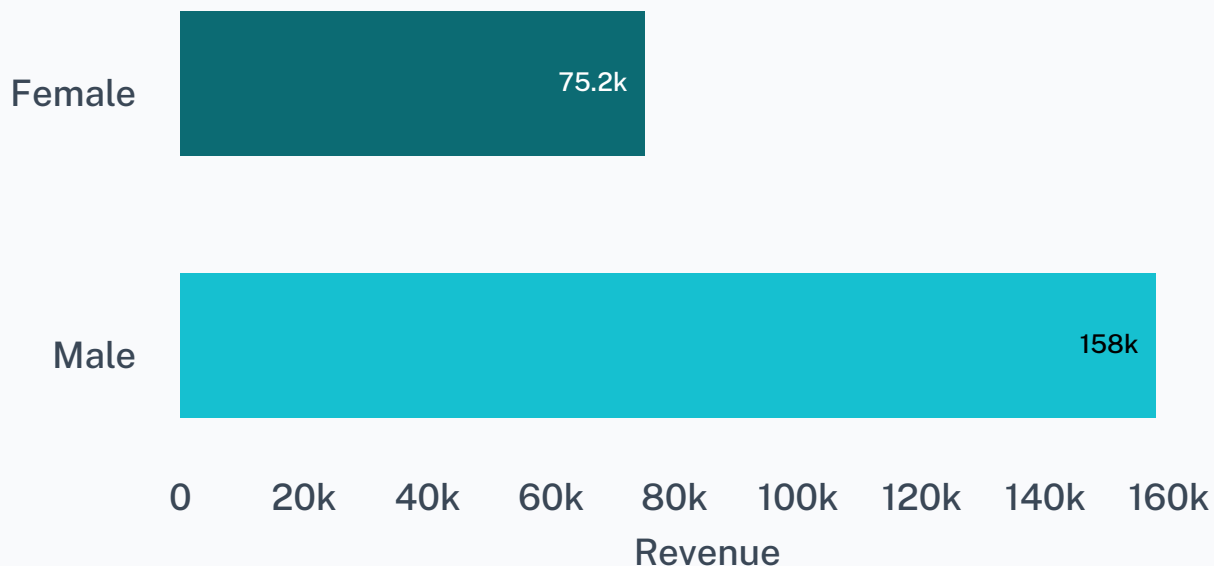

80%

loyal customers versus only 2% new customers.

The base is retention-heavy and acquisition-light.

Revenue skews male because the customer base does, not because men spend more

Gender

Revenue: Female $75,191; Male $157,890.

READ THE GAP CORRECTLY

Average spend per customer is nearly identical between genders.

Implication: close the customer-count gap through targeted acquisition and assortment reviews.

Subscription status is not lifting basket size

Subscribed?

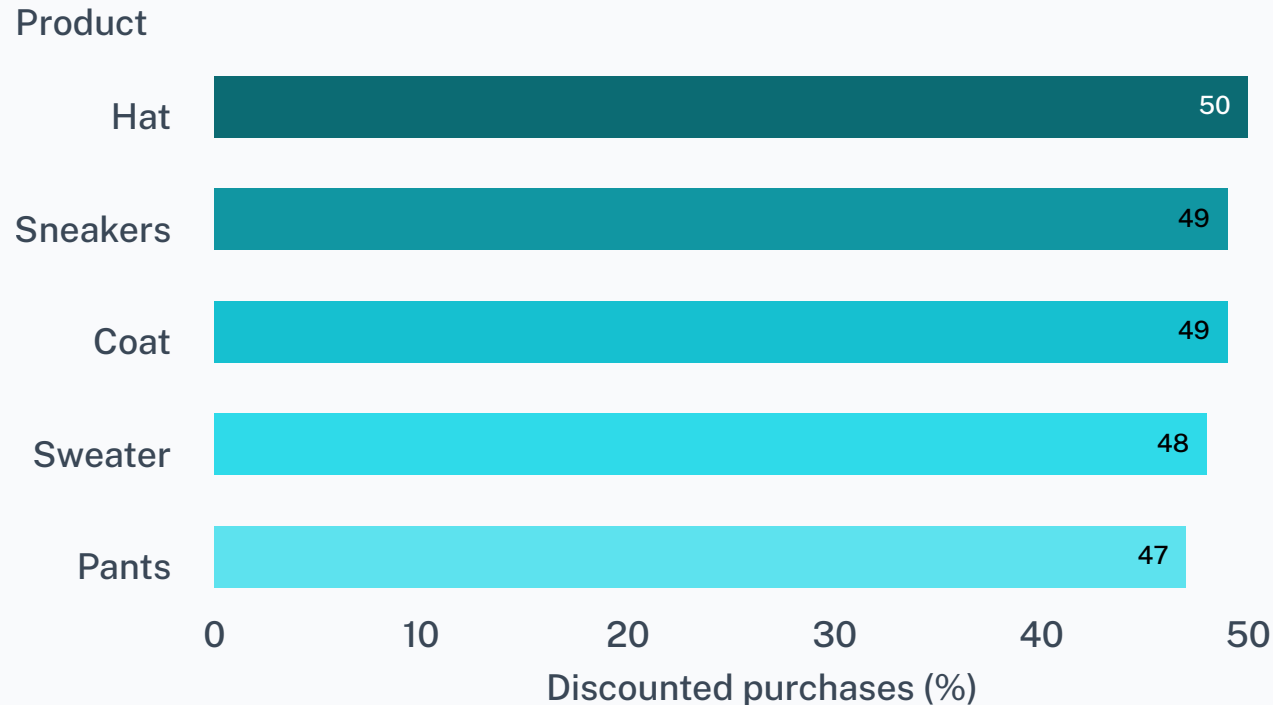

BASKET SIZE

$59.49

Subscribers versus $59.87 for non-subscribers.

Implication: redesign perks around larger baskets and target high-frequency non-subscribers.

Discounts are concentrated in a small set of product lines

MARGIN SIGNAL

Five product lines rely on discounts in roughly half of purchases.

Discount users can still be above the average purchase amount.

Implication: test targeted discounts, bundles, or smaller markdowns before broad price cuts.

Express shipping correlates with a modestly higher order value

ORDER VALUE LIFT

+$2.02

Express orders average about $2 more than standard orders.

Implication: surface express shipping more prominently or bundle it with loyalty benefits.

Product demand and satisfaction point to clear merchandising winners

HIGHEST-RATED PRODUCTS

Gloves 3.86

Sandals 3.84 · Boots 3.82 · Hat 3.80 · Skirt 3.78

BEST SELLERS BY CATEGORY

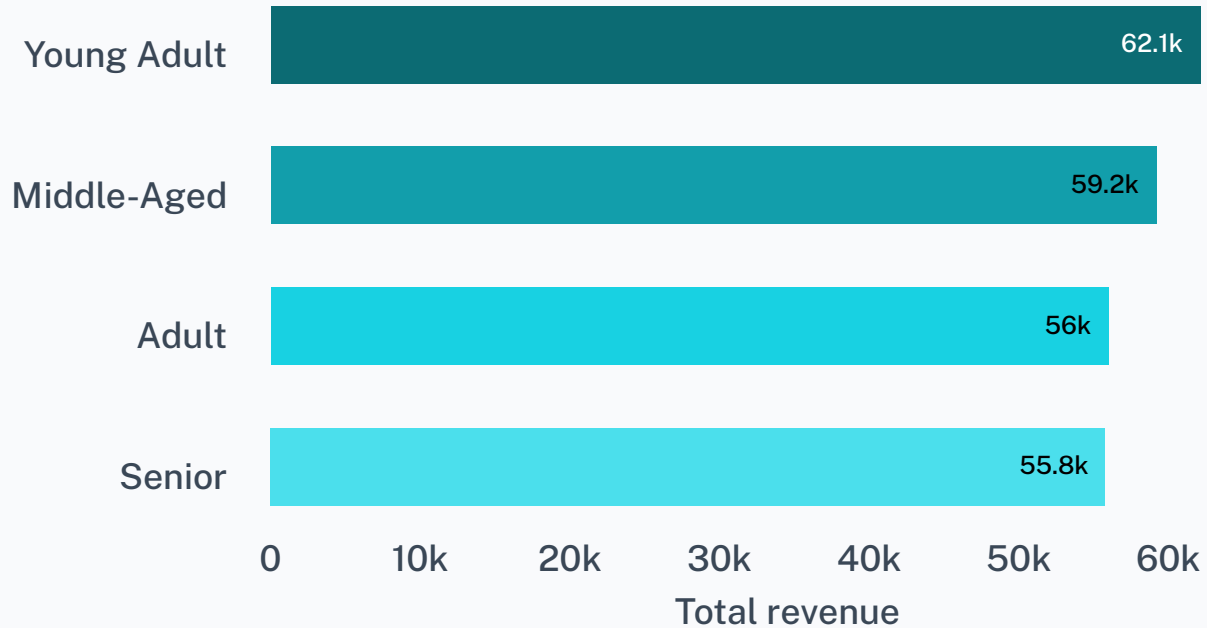

Jewelry · Blouse · Sandals

Jacket, and related leading products

Implication: feature proven winners in homepage placements, campaigns, and category merchandising.

Revenue is broadly distributed across age groups

Age group

PORTFOLIO SHAPE

No single age group dominates the business.

Revenue ranges from $55,763 for Senior to $62,143 for Young Adult.

Implication: maintain broad-based marketing while testing incremental Young Adult campaigns.

THE DECISION

Three moves can convert loyalty into growth

Keep the base healthy while widening the funnel, lifting baskets, and protecting margin.

01

Acquire

Invest in female customer acquisition, referrals, and first-purchase offers.

02

Convert

Redesign subscription perks and target the 2,518 repeat buyers who are not subscribed.

03

Protect margin

Test focused markdowns and bundles on high-discount product lines.

NEXT-QUARTER SCORECARD

Measure the next quarter by growth quality, not activity

Acquisition

New-customer share and female-customer growth

Subscription

Repeat-buyer conversion and subscriber basket size

Margin

Discount incidence and order value by product

Merchandising

Sales and ratings for featured winners

Experience

Express-shipping adoption and order value